In a multiracial country like Singapore, racial harmony is an important part of life. Racial Harmony Day is celebrated on 21 July each year to remind Singaporeans of the importance of racial and religious tolerance and unity.

Fun and special activities are held in schools to capture the attention of young people and help them learn about other cultures. Classrooms and halls are often adorned with traditional and cultural items showing Singapore's rich diversity. There are also designated booths for games, food tasting, and performances from different ethnic groups.

Traditional customs, such as clothing and food, have also evolved over time. For example, some traditional dishes now include modern ingredients, and cultural clothing is sometimes designed with a modern twist.

The education system is instrumental in teaching values such as respect and kindness from a young age. Through these efforts, Singapore continues to build a strong, united society where everyone feels valued and included.

Text 2

The extract below is taken from an online article on chocolate.

Chocolate is increasingly being promoted as a health-boosting superfood. While dark chocolate does contain compounds linked to health benefits, the overall effect of chocolate depends on various factors, including cocoa content, added ingredients and portion size. The truth is that most chocolate products contain high levels of sugar and fats, which diminish or even outweigh any potential health benefits.

Claims about the health benefits of chocolate often lead consumers to believe they should eat chocolate regularly. Unfortunately, those claims largely stem from studies on pure cocoa, not the processed and sweetened forms of chocolate commonly found in retail stores. Marketing tactics likewise play a role in shaping consumer perception. Some promotions sell the idea that consuming more chocolate leads to greater health benefits. These messages can cloud consumers' judgement.

For each question from 21 to 25, choose the best answer. Shade your answer (1, 2, 3 or 4) on the Optical Answer Sheet. (5 marks)

21. "Did you know chocolate is packed with antioxidants and essential nutrients?" Why did the author ask the question in Text 1?
- (1) to spark the reader's interest in chocolate
  - (2) to test the reader's knowledge about chocolate.
  - (3) to encourage the reader to eat more chocolate
  - (4) to explain to the reader about the benefits of eating chocolate
22. According to the poster in Text 1, which of the following is true about ChocoHealth's premium dark chocolate?
- (1) It must be consumed daily, .
  - (2) It can cure heart diseases.
  - (3) There is no artificial chemical added to it.
  - (4) It is everyone's favourite guilt-free snack.
23. "... ChocoHealth snacks are everyone's favourite in the entire household!" The images in the poster support this statement by giving the impression that ChocoHealth's products are_____.
- (1) mainly for adults
  - (2) best enjoyed alone
  - (3) only suitable for young children
  - (4) popular among people of all ages
24. Based on Text 1, how can you enjoy the promotions from ChocoHealth?
- (1) Spend $120 in-store to receive a $20 voucher.
  - (2) Spend $120 online for your first order to get 15% off instantly.
  - (3) Spend $60 in-store for a $20 voucher for your next online order.
  - (4) Spend $60 online to get $20 off and 15% off your next purchase.

25. We cannot trust the way Text 1 portrays ChocoHealth's chocolate because Text 2 says that _____.

- (1) chocolate is not a superfood
- (2) chocolate offers no health benefits
- (3) eating chocolate regularly is bad for one's health
- (4) advertisements can mislead consumers to think chocolate is healthy

END OF BOOKLET A

Please note that the passage for Comprehension questions 66 to 75 in Booklet B is on the next page. You may now go on to Booklet B.

Refer to the passage below when you answer questions 66 to 75 in Booklet B. (20 marks)

Jared slouched, eyes glazed over, fanning himself with a napkin. The hawker centre was noisy and the long queue in front of his grandfather's noodle stall did not help. Jared sighed. His idea of a perfect school holiday involved gaming, not sitting in a humid hawker centre at nine o'clock in the morning watching old men cook. He glanced at his phone. 'No signal. Great,' he thought.	5
"Ugh, why are you still working at your age? You're seventy-two!" Jared grumbled, rolling his eyes. Grandpa stirred the broth steadily, steam rising around him like a warm mist. His hands moved quickly — pouring soup, adding toppings, passing bowls to customers with a nod. Nothing brought him more fulfilment than serving the regulars who had eaten at his stall for years. Some customers even called him 'Ah Gong'‡ with affection.	10
"Sit there and observe, boy," Grandpa had said when Jared arrived that morning. "There are things books do not teach." Puzzled, Jared furrowed his eyebrows. He watched as Grandpa moved with a quiet purpose, wondering what exactly he was supposed to be learning. To him, it just looked like hard, sweaty work. As the morning wore on, Jared began to notice small things. Grandpa knew every customer's name. He would call out 'Good morning, Uncle Chen' or 'Hello Sarah from 4B', remembering not just their names but also little details about who they were. It soon became apparent to Jared that only by spending time at the stall could one understand what it truly meant to serve others.	15
What impressed Jared even more was Grandpa's memory at seventy-two. Before customers could even order, he was already preparing their bowls — extra fishcakes for one, no spring onions for another, less salt for the third. His kindness showed in other ways too. When a child dropped his spoon, Grandpa quietly handed him a new one without being asked. When an old lady struggled with her tray, he came around and helped her carry it to her table.	20
Jared also noticed how Grandpa never rushed. Even with the long queue, he smiled at each customer and even stopped to ask about their families and share stories from the old days. "Does all this chatting with customers not make you tired?" Jared finally asked during a short break, wiping sweat from his brow. Grandpa chuckled. "Of course I am tired. This stall has been here for thirty years now. Without it, I could never have paid for your father's education. The stall helped me put him through school." He paused to serve another bowl of noodles before continuing, "When I see elderly folks who might not get a proper meal for the day, I know why I must continue. I sell my food at a cheaper rate so they can afford to eat here. Tiredness goes away. But the will to keep going, bowl after bowl, stays."	25
Jared was quiet. He had regarded his grandfather's job as mundane noodle-making.	30

But watching him today, Jared saw how Grandpa served each bowl with care. What he had thought was just cooking turned out to be remarkable work.	35
"Why do you do all this, Grandpa? You should enjoy life in your old age!" Jared asked as they cleaned up. Grandpa wiped his hands and looked at him. "People remember how you make them feel, not how well you play your mobile game. In fact, I enjoy spending my time this way." Jared gave a small laugh. Between staring at screens and making someone smile, he now knew which one counted more.	40

* 'Ah Gong' is a term primarily used in Singapore which refers to Grandfather in the Hokkien dialect.

Flying cockroaches in Singapore are a common yet unsettling sight for many. Their sudden appearance, especially in one's home, (26) _____ cause alarm since they are often unexpected. These pests are often found in dark, humid areas like bathrooms and drainage systems. Despite maintaining a clean household, one may still encounter cockroaches as they navigate (27) _____ open windows or shared ventilation systems.

One of the most remarkable abilities of these cockroaches (28) _____ their resilience. They can survive in extreme conditions and have adapted (29) _____ avoid many extermination methods. Submerging them in water may seem like an effective solution but these insects can hold their breath for up to forty minutes, allowing them to escape even after being flushed down a drain. However, their survival is ultimately limited (30) _____ their inability to drink water, leading to eventual dehydration.

Despite common misconceptions, these cockroaches do not truly fly but rather glide using their wings to move (31) _____ surfaces. This movement is often mistaken (32) _____ aggressive behaviour when the insect is simply attempting to flee (33) _____ perceived danger.

Given their adaptability, infestations can be difficult to manage without professional intervention. While household remedies may offer temporary relief, engaging pest control services is often the most effective approach to ensuring a cockroach-free home, in (34) _____ may seem like an endless struggle to ward them (35) _____

A professional solution is often the key to regaining peace of mind.

The other day, I was looking around my room. My climbing shoes, gathering dust in the corner, catching my attention. Two years ago, I became intrested in bouldering, a type of rock climbing, after my friends introduced me to it. The exileration of reaching the top kept me engaged. However, after some time, I reached a standstill. With all my hard work,

I could not progress past a certain level. I spent hours trying different climbing routes, persevearing without any progress. It was clear that the time I had invested are not enough to improve my skills.

The excitement I once felt begin to fade. I found myself stuck, unable to move forward while others seemed to be making kontinueus progress.

Ocasionaly, I would think back to when I first started and feel frustrated that I had not improved. I realised I had becoming too focused on mastering the activity rather than enjoying it for the experience. Now, I am just trying to have fun.

E-payment is becoming increasingly common in schools across Singapore, with over 230 000 pupils using such a system to buy their food and drinks. This system has helped speed up transactions. This (46) _____ down queueing time at stalls during recess. During a short 30-minute recess, pupils can now make quick payments by tapping their smartcards against the payment terminal. This makes it faster for pupils to purchase their meals as (47) _____ to cash transactions, which require counting and giving change. In addition, faster transactions give pupils more time to eat and socialise (48) _____ also minimising congestion at stalls.

Canteen vendors also (49) _____ from e-payments. Since most meals are sold within the first 10 minutes of recess, digital transactions help them (50) _____ more pupils efficiently. Instead of just selecting from a set menu, pupils get to customise their meals according to their specific preferences. For (51) _____, a pupil might choose to add extra toppings or opt for a different type of bread. Vendors can immediately input the pupils' unique meal choices and the total price is calculated instantly, removing the need (52) _____ manual calculations, which would otherwise be time-consuming and prone to error.

The move towards e-payments is (53) _____ of the POSB Smart Buddy programme, first launched in 2017 in 19 primary schools. It then expanded in 2022 (54) _____ of a partnership between the Ministry of Education (MOE) and POSB, aiming to reach all primary schools by 2025. Many schools have already implemented the system with ongoing (55) _____ to extend it further.

Besides the Smart Buddy system, pupils can use school smartcards or EZ-link cards to pay for their meals. This integration allows them to track their transport and meal (56) _____ through detailed transaction records. This helps them monitor their spending habits and makes it easier to use one card for both travel and food.

However, there are challenges. Vendors may (57) _____ delays in receiving payments, affecting their money (58) _____ hand. Additionally, some pupils may overspend (59) _____ in the week when their cards are topped up and have little left for the remaining days. To address this (60) _____, POSB is offering lessons on managing money to thousands of primary and pre-school pupils. The adoption of e-payments in schools continues to grow as schools recognise the benefits of digital payments, supporting the shift towards a cashless society.
